Astronomical Review for 1881. The following interesting facts, regarding the astronomy of the past year, have been sent us by Prof. Lawis Swift, Director of the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y.

Tre astronomical events of the year 1881 will long occupy a distinguished place in the annals af astronomy. In the matter of comets, especially, it has been an exceptionally good year. Since the commescement of this century, there have appeared, and have been care fally observed, and their orbits computed, nearly 200 comets—an average of about one in five months, but in the interval between May 1 and November 16, only six and abalf months, seven comets were discovered, two of which were visible to the naked eye, one of them so conspicuous as to take rank with the most remarkable of those of modern times.

Immediately upon the announcement of the discovery of a comet-whether made in this country or in Europe-special circulars have been printed and gratuitously and widely distribated by the Rochester Astronomical Scoisty. By means of these circulars-which are issued in less than an hour after the receipt of news-every newspaper and every professional and amateur astronomer in the United States is informed of all the known details which the discoverer is able to give.

As the year is neuring its close, it seems de sirable that a resume of the comets in the order of their discovery, be made, and also some special facts regarding each be presented to the public which could not be done within the limits of the circulars which were sent out, before their orbits had been computed, or any of their peculiar characteristics ascertaiced. My retrospic; must necessarily be brief and confined objeffy to the comets of the year 1881, which, in point of numbers have but twice been exceeded during the history of astronomy.

Of the seven, five were discovered in the United States, a number equal to one-Sfih of all that have ever been detected on this contineut. This sudden iccrease of American dispoveries is, no doubt, largely due to the prize of $200, for the discovery (in this country and Canada) of each new comet, which was offered by Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y. This is the only comet prize ever tendered in the recommendation of Captain J. C. Graham I this country. Very thoroughly has the sky been began to use Warner's Sate Kidney and Liver Care, and it has effected an entire one in my searched by aspirants for this tempting prize, case. as well as for the honors of discovery.

Three of the dissiverers, having conformed to the conditions governing the award, have boen pait as follows : Schaeberle $200, Biro. ard $200, and Swift $200 twice.

The following is a list of the comets of the year, in the order of their discovery: Comet A, Roohester, N. Y. Swilt, Tebbatt. do. B. South Africa do. C. Sobseberle. Ann Arbor, Mich do. D. Eicke's, [periodic & expected ] Bernard, Nashville, Tenn. do. Brooks, Phelps, N. Y. Rochester, N. Y. ds.

do. G. Swift, Comet A. was found May 1 in Andromeda. It was a faint object, and, moving rapidly southeast, was soon lost in the morning twilight, and was not seen in the southern hemisphere, no astronomer there having been apprised, by telegraph, of its discovery, as was at first thought sidesable.

Comst "B," or the sensational one of the year, was the brightest since the memorable one of 1861, and, curious y enough, both were discovered by the same person, this with the naked cys, on May 21. Its path was nearly due north, and ty its proximity to the sun was soon rendered invisible from any part of the world. It passed the sun only 8° west, at noon on June 19, and was first seen in the northern hemisphere on the morning of June 22, its tai only being then visible. The next morning i became an object of general observation, striking every beholder with astonishment. Its subsequent career is too well remembered to need a description here. Its croit is probably elliptical, having a period of about 3,000 years. From a similarity of elements it was at first thought to be the comet of 1807, but that it is not, now commands the assent of astronomers.

It is still faintly visitle in the constellation Ccpheus. Comet C, was first seen on the morning of July 18, and, somewhat singularly, in almost the same place where comet B had so suddenly appeared after being lost sight of in the s uthera hemisphere. This would have been pronounced a fine comet had not its immediate predecessor cutrivalled it so greatly, Like "B" it had two tails. Its elements are unike those of any comet beretofore observed. Comet D [Encke's], which has a period of only about 3 3 10 years, has just paid us another, and the twee y-ninth visit, since it was first detected in 1786.

Comet E was discovered on August 18 h by Mr. E E. Baroard. To him belongs the disticction of having been the first in the South ern States to discover a comet. It moves in a parabolic orbit, and, there f re, visited our system for the first and less time. Only those comets moving to effiptic orbits can come to our system more than ouce.

Come: F was first detected on the morning of October 4.b. by Mr. W. R. Brooks, and, on the next morning, by Mr. W. F. Deoning, of Bristol, England, was immediately ausoniced it, which Mr. Brooks for two days delayed to do, as clouds prevented him from determining whether it were a comet or a nebula. It is, not withstanding that it was visible only through the telescope, by far the most important one of the year. It is a periodic comet of the short period of eight years. It is, therefore, and probably for years has been, a permanent men. ber of our system.

Comet G, discovered by Swift on the evening of November 16th, is of fair size, though faint, and, like A, E, and F, without a tail. Its ele mente are some what like those of comet A, 1792. but this resemblance contact be determined until after further observatten. It will be seen for some time yet, as the direction of motion southwest will give it a long visible path. An ancular coipse of the sun took place on November 20th, tutits and u'ar phase was protably seen by no human being, as its track lay in the south polar regions. Two other eclipses have occurred, but they were only partial, and several astronomers-notably by Professor Henry Draper, a feat never befere accomplished. Several small stars were shown on the nightive shining through the tail, though their light passed through probably 100,000 miles of cometic matter. This shows the exceeding transparency of these anomalous bedies. In fact is one of their distinguishing characteristica. What has been learned about comets? Very little. Comet B was the trightest that has appeared since the invention of the spectroscope, and being so exceptionally well pleased for observation and spectroscopic, analysis of its pucieus, coma and tail, promised much to science, Nothing, however, was observed but the usual spectra revealed by fainter comets. Aside from the apparition of the above co-mets, no astronomical events of very great scientific value have occurred. The most oc-table were the total eclipse of the moon on the evening of June 11th, and the transit of Mercury ic asi the sun's face on November 7th. It was generally invisible east of the Mississ p. pi, but in the ex reme Western States and Territories some valuable observations of it were made by parties especially equi; ped for the work,

An important addition to our knowledge of solar physics, and one destined to have an important bearing on meteorology, has been made by Professor Langley from the top of Mount Whitney, 15,000 feet above the sea. He has proved to his satisfaction that the solar constant of heat, as estimated by Sir John Heischel, Pouillet, Wollaston and others, is very much greater than they supposed. From the top of this mountain, amid the snow and ic , so rare and pure was the air that water was boiled by the direct ucconcentrated rays of the tuo. Physicists will await with muca acciety his complete report, which wil be published by the government. LEWIS SWIFT. Director Warner's Observatory. Roohester, N. Y., D.c 24, 1881.

Alexandris, Va., August 4, 1881.

I was thrown from my horse 6 or 7 years ago, and suffered a severe wound of the side, which was aggravated by disordered kidneys. Bleven months ago I was attacked with proumonis and blacder disease, deposits of brick dust and albumen being discernable by the naked eye. I was confined to the house for six months, and was unable to cross the floor without assistance. My physician did me no good. Having read in my religious weeklies of the wonderful cures by your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and being advised to use it by Captain Graham, I did so, and am cace more able to walk the streets. My pains have left me, and I believe if I had used the remedy a year ago I should then a so have been cured.
